1649. After years of bloody conflict, an exhausted England is in the hands of radical extremists. Desperate to make sense of the horror surrounding them, a group of ordinary men and women cling to the belief that they will be shown a glimpse of an unspeakable, transcendent glory.

Tony Benn is a former Cabinet Minister and current President of the Stop the War Coalition.

Billy Bragg is a rock musician and political activist.

Kate Mosse is an author and broadcaster who co-founded the Orange Prize for Fiction.

Geoffrey Robertson QC is a human rights lawyer, UN Judge, author and broadcaster. He also introduces Verso's The Putney Debates, by the Levellers.
